

When No One Is Watching
A Thriller
by Alyssa Cole
(William Morrow Paperbacks)

"The gentrification of her beloved Brooklyn neighborhood has longtime resident Sydney Green mourning what's lost. Striking up an uneasy alliance with new neighbor Theo, she starts research for a walking tour to highlight the area's rich history and diversity but quickly comes to realize that something far more sinister is going on. A sense of mounting dread and some startling twists and turns will keep readers turning the pages. Where HAVE all those old neighbors gone? For fans of An Unwanted Guest, The Woman in Cabin Ten, and Watching You."

—Beth Mills, New Rochelle Public Library, New Rochelle, NY

TOP PICK

September 2020 - The top ten books published this month that library staff across the country love.

Battle Ground
by Jim Butcher
(Ace)

"Battle Ground has more at stake than any previous book in the Dresden Files series, and more changes for Harry. Filled to the brim with non-stop action, this entry has Harry and almost every supernatural being he knows coming to defend Chicago from a mad Titan bent on reshaping reality. For fans of Mercy Thompson series (Briggs) and the Iron Druid Chronicles (Hearne)."

—Dan Brooks, Wake County Public Libraries, Raleigh, NC
NovelList read-alike: The Brimstone Files series by Jason Sean Ridler

The Midnight Library
A Novel
by Matt Haig (Viking)

"At a seminal moment in her life, Nora visits a unique library. Every book she chooses is one that she becomes part of and is a possible life she might have led. There are adventures, close calls, and joy. Give this totally engrossing page turner to fans of Here and Now and Then (Chen) and Life after Life (Atkinson)."

—Deborah Margeson, Douglas County Libraries, Castle Rock, CO
NovelList read-alike: Or What You Will by Jo Walton

Monogamy
A Novel
by Sue Miller
(Harper)

"Annie and Graham have been married for 30 years. When Graham unexpectedly dies, Annie finds out he had a recent affair. As she reevaluates her relationship and deals with feelings of anger and betrayal, a few secrets in her own past are revealed. This story of grief, sadness, and acceptance is perfect for fans of Hausfrau and Unsheltered."

—Laura Fowler, J.V. Fletcher Library, Westford, MA
NovelList read-alike: Shadow Tag by Louise Erdrich

Piranesi
by Susanna Clarke
(Bloomsbury Publishing)

"Piranesi is the sole inhabitant of a mysterious "house" with endless rooms full of statues and a surging ocean below. With lyrical and hypnotic writing in his journal, he guides readers through his beloved labyrinthine home and introduces "The Other," a sporadic visitor and the only other living human being...or so he thought. For fans of The Starless Sea and The Bedlam Stacks."

—Catherine Tarver, Indian Prairie Public Library, Darien, IL
NovelList read-alike: Little, Big by John Crowley

A Rogue of One's Own
by Evie Dunmore
